

A High-End, Classic & Elegant Interior for a Modern Family by CFK Interiors of Connecticut

In 2010, Claudia Kalur founded CFK Interiors, a design studio specializing in full-service interior design for luxury homes. The projects she undertakes extend from Litchfield County and Fairfield County of Connecticut to Dutchess County and Westchester County of New York. The team at CFK Interiors are intentional to come alongside homeowners to plan a house that they will ultimately love, enjoy, and desire to spend time in. Each home is designed with the client's lifestyle in mind, and by going the extra mile to furnish homes with custom pieces, each client of Claudia's receives a truly unique space.

Claudia's most loved aesthetic to work with is high-end, classic, and elegant interiors made to suit the modern family. A favorite project of Claudia's, and an excellent example of the "modern traditional" style she loves, is this Connecticut home for a family of four—architecture designed by David Hottenroth of Hottenroth and Joseph. To perfect the balance between modern and traditional, Claudia and her team mixed antiques and vintage furniture with modern elements like light fixtures, accent furniture, and surprising fabrics.

Claudia especially loved the completed design of the kitchen. The blue cabinetry brought playful character to the space and was carried all the way to the walls of the butler's pantry. The wooden beams and the oven fireplace made of brick offset the modern lighting beautifully, a perfect marriage of traditional and modern.

Both the husband and wife were thrilled with the design and craftsmanship of their finished spaces, as was Claudia who loved designing each individual room. So marvelous is this home that it was awarded a finalist award for CT Cottages & Gardens Innovation in Design. Without a doubt, CFK Interiors delivered a stunning and timeless home that this family could grow in for years to come.
